

Splitting up the work

Idea- We got together as a group to come up with the idea, with each person contributing to the discussion and the final plan. The 4 computer science people worked on the formula and Yoojin primarily did the design.

Design – Once a rough idea of what the project should look like was come up with the actual design was done by Yoojin. This included the mock ups used in the first presentation, color and other considerations used in the actual project

Website – A basis for the website was made by Caleb. More work was done on it by Rishi, Noah, and Nick. It was finished up by Caleb.
